Testimonials from animal owners. and their pet's point of view.

Limehouse Veterinary Clinic of Holistic Medicine:

You asked how we are using Noni (Morinda citrifolia) at our clinic. When we first started dispensing the product, I was very selective and used it only in cases of cancer. A high percentage of the clients reported back that their animals were acting very young and playful--more so than in a long time. In a few cases, some tumors actually regressed--a squamous cell carcinoma of the gingiva of an old Labrador Retriever shrunk by 1/2 its original size; In a dog with multiple lipomas, several have decreased in size and some have even resolved; an undifferentiated mammary tumor on another dog is almost non-palpable within 1 month.

I have tried it on several cats with millary dermatitis and dogs with atopic disease. Even though we have continued our regular therapies along with Noni, these cats have responded more quickly, and are remaining free of skin problems. Our own Golden Retriever is a classic atopic, sensitive to almost all pollens found in this area of Southern California. Although we did not anticipate using him as a test case, because of our travel and teaching schedule, we were unable to treat him with acupuncture for about 6 weeks. Historically, this would have meant severe dermatitis--yet, with him receiving Noni twice daily, his allergies are almost non-existent, and his coat looks the best it has since he's lived in Los Angeles! Several other pet owners have contacted us to report that pruritic animals have improved dramatically with the use of Noni.

My name is Dilly Dally. I'm a Dalmation. They call me "Dilly" for short. I am 11 years of age on September 4th. That's 77 years to you humans. My humans, Dave Maxwell and Dianne of Double D International, became aware of noni juice and started adding it to my water last December. Now, don't get me wrong, I take pretty good care of myself and have always taken pride in treeing cats with the best of them, but I'm here to tell you that noni juice has changed my life. Like many others getting along in years, I would awaken sometimes in the morning and have to hop on three legs for several hours--arthritis it was, they tell me. The noni juice put an end to that. I also had a red rash on my skin--not uncommon to Dalmations in Florida. Man, that made my back almost blood red, and where I could reach my tail, I couldn't help it. I almost ate myself alive. Nothing my humans or veterinarians could do seemed to help until the noni juice. Now the rash and itch are completely gone and my coat is smooth and silky. Other canines my age tend to be developing cataracts. You know, those milky eyes. My eyes are as clear as crystal. My hearing is as acute as that of a puppy. I used to get worms from time to time. Since taking noni juice, I have been checked regularly (how embarrassing) but haven't had them since.

Heck, I don't mind telling you I prance like a colt and, when my humans let me run in the field, I scamper around like a one year old. The best part about it, is I love the taste of noni juice in my water and drink it down to the bottom of the bowl. I just have to come running and wagging my tail when the bottle comes out of the refrigerator. As far as I am concerned it's not only good for me, it just plain tastes good. Now, if I had any doubt that Noni was working for me, that all went away when my humans went on vacation for a week. Don't get me wrong, the human they left me with was a mighty fine fellow, but he completely forgot to add noni juice to my water while they were gone. Then my humans got back, I was a mess. I was walking around with the shakes in the morning, my coat had gone dry and brittle with little tufts sticking out, my rash had started to come back, I was listless, and my eyes had lost their bright luster. I looked like someone had slipped me a few beers! A little noni in my water and my whole attitude changed in 15 minutes. I was a puppy again and in a day or so all those negative conditions reversed. I couldn't be better as long as I have my noni juice from Hawaii!

My humans came back from a convention with something new and wonderful. I have to fight mites and fungus in my ears (warm climate again). My humans had been putting the noni juice in my ears. My veterinarian kept me while my humans went to that convention. He fed me my noni juice and was so impressed with what great shape I was in that he asked Dave and Diane for more information about it. Said he was seriously considering using noni juice for all of us four-leggeds. He even asked if it was good for veterinarians with the flu. You bet, Doc! Have some of mine!! Now, I don't mind Doc using it on us dogs, but I take exception with him using it for cats. And just when I was getting so I could catch up with a few of those pesky critters with noni. Now, Doc, that's barking up the wrong tree for sure (Ain't I the wag?). Take it from me, none of us will ever be "sick as a dog" if we drink our noni juice! I have used noni juice to help both a dove and a parakeet. The young dove had fallen from its nest when it was just a few weeks old. When we found it the dog had already gotten to it and it was in pretty bad shape.

I gave it noni juice and fed it a diet of worms and moss. When it was obvious that the bird was healthy and could survive on its own, I let it go. It still stays close to our house. I also used noni juice on a parakeet that had an injured wing. By the following morning, the injured wing was completely healed!

My cat recently broke her leg when she fell out of a tree. Naturally, I took her to the vet for treatment. A good friend of mine told me about a product called noni juice. She told me that she knew someone who had given it to their dog after it was run over by a car. The dog was badly injured and not expected to survive. The dog's owner insisted that the dog be given noni juice and credited it with saving the dog's life. Since that time, I have heard many similar stories about noni. I started mixing an ounce of noni juice with my cat's milk. Not only did my cat heal much more quickly than expected, she seems to have much more energy than she had before she was injured. I still give her noni juice every day. Noni juice really works and I encourage everyone to give it a try.

We started giving noni juice to our 10 year old dog, Pepsi, several months ago in hopes that it would help him with his arthritis. He has always been very active. However, over the course of the past year, he seemed to be slowing down considerably. We noticed that he was starting to look very stiff when he would stand up. And, it took him several minutes of what appeared to be painful stretching before he could walk.

Within a few days after I started mixing noni juice with his water, Pepsi went through an amazing transformation. He now hops right up and he has become as playful as a puppy. Pepsi also has had several fatty tumors during the past two years. While the vet says that they are not necessarily anything to worry about at this time, they are a cause for concern. The tumors are much smaller since Pepsi started drinking noni juice. When I forget to give him noni juice for more than a couple of days, I can definitely tell the difference. Pepsi's body stiffens up again and he loses all of his pep. Within a few hours of having his noni juice, he is once again acting half his age. I have recommended noni juice to several of my friends and they all report exciting results. I think its good for every pet.

Noni juice made us feel so good that we decided to give some to our 12 year old Schnauzer, Stoney. He had been suffering from arthritis in his back for the past year and a half. As a result, he was no longer able to jump up onto the couch or the bed. We started out putting a quarter ounce of noni juice on Stoney's food. Now we mix a quarter ounce of noni juice with milk and give Stoney this "noni cocktail" each day. Within 10 days after we started giving Stoney the noni, he was able to hop up onto the couch and bed. Noni juice has also eliminated Stoney's constipation problems. He acts younger and he has the gate of a playful puppy.

An example of how much noni has helped Stoney came to light recently, when he was without it for four days. He was dragging around the house. We realized that he had not had his noni. Within one day of getting back on the juice he was back to being Stoney The Noni Dog!

Noni juice has really done wonders for our dog, Jelly Bean. She has suffered for years from an irritating rash that covers her stomach and feet. Noni juice is controlling this rash completely. We give her a teaspoon of noni juice for breakfast. We also apply noni topically and mix a tablespoon with her bath. Jelly Bean loves the noni juice!

I am an Alternative Health Care Practitioner in New York. My 7 year old cat, Patches, developed diabetes as the result of a medication which he was given several years ago. He was on insulin for a period of time. More recently, I had been treating him with natural products rather than with insulin.

I began adding one teaspoon of noni juice to his breakfast food every morning. Within one week, I noticed the difference in him. I have noticed that Patches has been grooming himself much more frequently since I began adding noni juice to his food. I feel that this is a sign that his pancreas is functioning more normally. Diabetes causes a cat's mouth to become dry making them less inclined to groom themselves. Noni juice from Hawaii has been very good for Patches!

Several months ago one of my cats, Puff, became seriously ill. Puff is seven years old and has enjoyed a relatively healthy life. However, I awoke one morning to find him very ill. He had been acting funny for a couple of days. I took him to the vet and he said that Puff had possibly eaten something which had made him ill. The results of his liver and kidney enzyme tests were way off. He was lethargic and very dehydrated. The vet gave Puff some fluids and I took him home. My parents gave me a bottle of noni juice and I started giving Puff two tablespoons a day. Within a few days Puff was feeling much better. I took him back to the vet for a check up a couple of weeks later and he was given a clean bill of health. I still give Puff a tablespoon of noni juice every day.

We breed Quarter Horses and Paints in California. One day we received a call that a valuable mare had been critically injured in an accident in Oregon. Her pectoral and shoulder muscles had literally been torn away. The local veterinarian put her chances of survival at less than 2 percent and told us that we should put her down immediately. I (Fred) have been researching alternative health care and healing methods to deal with my own medical problems (primarily arthritis) for almost 30 years. During the course of this research, I had recently read about noni. When we received the call regarding the injured mare, I refused to have her put down. She comes from championship stock and, even though she was injured too badly to be shown, her potential value for breeding was very high. I gave instructions that noni be put directly on the wounds, as well as down the throat. A few days after her accident, I drove to Oregon and found that she was in bad shape, but still alive.

I gave the horse several ounces of noni juice to sedate her. Nothing else that I had been given to use for this purpose worked. I then proceeded to cut away at least 5 pounds of rotting flesh, nerves, and muscle from her injured shoulder. The following week, I put her in a trailer and took her back to California to continue her recovery.

Within 3 months she was running like an antelope! All of the hair has grown back over the injured area. Six weeks ago, I turned her loose to roam on open range. I also used noni juice on a yearling that had been badly injured when pushed through a fence by a mare. His flesh and muscle on the inside of his leg was cut to the bone from the top of the leg almost down to the hoof. I cut off the end of a turkey baster and gave this yearling 8 ounces of noni juice orally. I applied it topically as well. In treating this horse, I had to cut through veins and cauterize them with a heated iron to stop the bleeding. This horse never flinched throughout this entire process. I wrapped the leg and continued to give the horse 8 ounces of noni juice orally each day. Two months later, the leg was healed and I was able to turn him out to pasture. We also gave noni juice to one of our cats who had been injured when she was stepped on by a horse. She had been dragging her injured leg for six months. After only a month on noni juice, she could walk normally. Noni juice has helped our 9 year old German Shepherd as well. Before drinking the juice, his advancing age made it very difficult for him to get around. After a couple of months on noni juice, he plays with our young pup until the pup is absolutely exhausted and gives up! We believe without a doubt that Noni juice is a truly amazing gift from paradise and encourage everyone to try it!
